The Glee Shanghai competition is a singing competition for youth in the Shanghai International School community. The aim is to showcase the singing talents of singers as individuals and in the group format. Overall talent in singing, dancing and stage presence will be rewarded by competent judges based on a point system.

Competitors will be given one chance to rehearse on the stage at the venue on the afternoon of the event. They will then perform their numbers for the judges and wait for the awards to be decided upon and given out that evening.

Groups and soloists will receive mentorship from Ann James and Katrina Barry and will be evaluated throughout the process to help them enhance their performances.

Experienced judges, such as Opera Singer Lydia Ma and R&B celebrity Carlton J. Smith, among others, will form the judges panel for the evening.

Entry deadline April 11th, 2013

The funds for the Cambodian Education Project will be used to build, develop and resource a school in Siem Ream, to support the disadvantaged children in the community.
